

Alan Hilliar for Surrey Heath

I'm an experienced Parliamentary Candidate. I've fought the last three General Elections for the Liberal Democrats.

I'm a active campaigner. I've led campaigns to protect our countryside and to give our young people a better future.

I live locally. My wife Carolyn and I have lived in Ash, a few miles from Camberley, for a number of years. We're active at both branch and constituency level in Surrey Heath. I've been a local Borough and Parish councillor

From my experience in business consultancy, I understand how to build teams, how to create a vision for change and how to rebuild enthusiasm.

What is your vision for Surrey Heath Liberal Democrats?

Each of us in the constituency will need to rediscover our will to win. And we will need a fresh approach to the way we manage our campaigns.

Not everyone will need to be out on the doorsteps, but there are lots of ways in which every member and supporter can be actively involved, depending on their circumstances, skills and preferences.

Given my background in business and technology consulting, I think there's more we can do with e-campaigning, increasing our use of web sites, e-surveys and building an email lists for targeted mailings.

Given that we have three colleges in the constituency, I think we could get students and young people more involved in our campaigning.

I've built up very active and very effective campaigning teams with 20 – 30 young people aged 18 –25 years (See "Remember Hayley – Come Home Safe" under Campaigning on www.alanhilliar.org.uk).

What would be your campaigning priorities?

Nationally, I think we have a lot of credibility with the economy, the environment, and our place in Europe .

Personally, I feel strongly about environmental and countryside issues, and about issues affecting young people, such as education, training, and involvement. I feel that as a society, we don't give older people the respect and care they deserve.

What is your commitment to the constituency?

If you select me as your Parliamentary Candidate. I promise to be out there working alongside you. helping to encourage. to identify new talent and to build up effective teams. And to help you to re-discover that will to win!

I will bring ideas and enthusiasms. I will certainly encourage. but I won't push anyone. We have to move together as individuals and a constituency. and that process will take lots of time. patience. compromises and considerable perseverance. But I promise to stick with you through that process. and to help both individuals and the constituency party as a whole to develop a vision. a strategy and a plan to win. to which we can all buy in.

I don't underestimate the commitment that will require. But if you give me your support. I will in return. use my energies. my time and my experience to help you become that winning team.
